2. Read the passage "Playing with your Food" and answer the questions below. (2ms)

Most parents tell their children not to play with their food. A group of musicians in Austria obviously didn't listen. The Vienna Vegetable Orchestra, which was founded in 1998, uses fresh vegetables to make music. They choose only the freshest vegetables from local markets for their instruments which are made an hour before the show. "Fresh vegetables produce high-quality sounds. Plastic-packed vegetables do not make good instruments," they say. Each vegetable can be used in many different ways.

The orchestra's musical repertoire ranges from classical to electronic. They play about 20 to 30 concerts a year. At the end of each performance, the vegetables are made into a delicious soup for the audience to eat. The whole experience is something that all your senses can enjoy.
